

The name does not "grab" me. Also, the app does 3 things, "discover/share/connect over food". Google this as an app. Then Google "Culinary Connect" and you get Job Databases. I would have to put more thought into this.

Culinary is very clear as to what the app is about, but connect leaves me to wonder if I am connecting to a group that loves cooking, a website with cooking groups but this may be due to my age.

I like it. but I would put and "s" on the end to make it "culinary connections" I think that really rolls off the tongue and would draw in a large base and emphasizes a social aspect of the app

I think the title is supportive of your mission includes multiple culinary aspects (cooking tips, safety guidelines, recipes). It may not be clear to users if you are only including recipes.
